Disaster Recovery Forum Guidelines

Directions
First-time users will need to initially register in order to post a message on the Forum. From the main screen of the Electronic Forums, click the “register” button (indicated with a check mark). You only need to enter a user name and a valid email address before you click the submit button on the bottom of the page. Once you have done this, the system will email you a confirmation and a password. Use your user name and password to login in from the main screen. At this point, you may change your password to anything you would like by simply selecting the “profile” button. With these easy steps completed you are free to view the message threads, respond to a posting or post a new message.

A new feature of the Forum is that users may elect to receive email notification of any new posting to any thread to which they have posted. This option may be elected by accessing the “profile” menu and selecting the check box “Subscribe me to topics to which I post.” At this time, the system does not have an option for users to receive a digest version of all of the day’s postings.

Forum Rules & Etiquette
Thanks for being part of the Forum community. To ensure the best possible experience for all Forum members, we have established some basic guidelines for participation.

By posting a message, you agree that you have read and will follow the rules and guidelines set for these peer discussion groups. You also agree to reserve Forum discussions for topics best suited to the medium. Questions about ASET should be directed to our Member Services Manager. Policy issues relating to the profession should be directed to the Executive Director.

Please take a moment to acquaint yourself with these important guidelines. In order to preserve a climate that encourages both civil and fruitful dialogue, ASET reserves the right to suspend or block the Forum to members who violate these rules.

The Rules
